

Quartier Zentral

St. Pölten, 2015 - 2018
Residential buildings

In St. Pölten, Lower Austria, Viennese real estate developer CORAG has built the 'Quartier Zentral', a centrally located neighbourhood covering an area of approximately 8,500 square metres. Some 200 apartments are located at the heart of this urban development area, which lies between the main railway station and the university clinic in the so-called Health District. Two of the three buildings there were designed and executed by schneider+schumacher Vienna.

In Maximilianstrasse, 49 high-end 'designer apartments' have been created around an inner courtyard with generous greenery and playground areas. The double-T-shaped block development offers apartments ranging from 1 to 5 rooms, which the investor Semper Constantia Immo Invest is marketing under the label "max.living". A second building for the pension fund VBV-Vorsorgekasse already occupies a corner site in Kerensstrasse. This is an L-shaped residential complex comprising 77 state-of-the-art units for rent.
